OUR THERMAL WATERS

Probably you will have some questions about the characteristics, the origin and the use of the thermal water during your stay with us. We would like to answer some of these questions in advance.

Are all waters the same ?

No. Scientists classify the thermal waters based on three parameters:

- temperature
- remains at 180° C
- chemical composition that divides the water in classes and underclasses

Based on these parameters the waters are divided in: water with little minerals, sulphurous water, salted bromine water, radioactive water, chloride-sodic water, sulphate water, bicarbonate water, carbonate water, iron-arsenical water.

What kind of water do we use ?

Our water is defined salt-bromine-iodine and chloride-sodic.

What are the therapeutic characteristics of our thermal water ?

Our water is recommended:

- for the locomotor (regulation of the muscle tonus, against inflammation, analgesic)
- for the skin (against inflammation, astringent, antibacterial, detergent, tonic)
- for the breathing (mucous deliberating, against inflammation)

Are there contra-indications ?

A person with special health problems should visit a doctor before immersing into the warm thermal water. But only extreme health problems (tumours, heart and lung problems, etc.) may be followed by contra-indications caused by the thermal water.

What does the fango-mud treatment do ?

The thermal fango-mud is the result of a combination of mud and the thermal water. The two parts have to stay together for a few months to guarantee the "maturation of the mud".

Is physical exercise recommended during a thermal therapy ?

Yes. If the exercise does not worsen the health problems trying to be resolved by the therapy.

Can a thermal water therapy be an alternative to pharmacies ?

If the therapy is made to cure some chronic disturbs, which often do not react to pharmacies any more, it surely is a valid alternative.

How and how often to get into the thermal water ?

The regularity of the use of the thermal water is inevitable for the therapeutic success: it is recommended to bath in thermal water for regular but short periods (for example 10/15 min every hour a certain number a day). The fango-bathing therapy effects the skin, especially those with fair and sensible skin who tend to allergies and sun irritations. It is recommended to minimize the sun exposure and to use a high protection. The penetration of thermal water into the ears may cause otitis.

Are there preferred times for the thermal water therapy ?

In general they say spring and autumn are the best periods to do the thermal cure. But the time of the year certainly does not influence the results of the thermal cure.

Is the thermal water used for other than thermal therapies ?

Our thermal water is also used for the production of heat and to nurture the pools and the fango-mud tubs (tubs for the maturation, conservation and heating of the fango-mud.)

Why is the water not clear ? The colour of the thermal water varies between green and brown, depending on the oxidation and the downfall of metal elements present in the water. The more water is added to the pool, the darker the colour, because of the invisible small particles of mud and sand. To be able to suck this particles out of the water it needs some time so they can deposit themselves on the bottom of the pool. Because of the constant change between water and air there may emerge a dirty line at the side of the pool.

Why are there algae in the pool ?

The presence of algae in the pool is based on the nature of the thermal water itself. These algae produce enzymes and antibacterial essences. Their presence is a certain indication that the water is natural and not chemically treated.

Why are the temperatures of the pools not always the same ?

The thermal water is drawn from the wells through a sensible pumping system for 15 minutes every hour to protect the pumps from the high temperatures at the bottom of the well. It is impossible to guarantee a constant temperature of the pools, because it also depends on the climatic circumstances like wind, rain and heat.

The hotel has three thermal water wells with a general depth of 140 to 185 m and a temperature that varies between 66° and 80° C.
